The Louisville Calamity.

LOUISVILLE, March 29 .- A special in egard to the storm says the nev anufacturing town of Grand River ear Paducah, was struck by the blast and a dozen houses blown down. Two people were killed -a woman and a boy-and twenty hurt.

All the telegraph lines were destroyed at Farmington, where much damage was done to buildings, but no lives were lost.

At Paducah theres was but little damage. The telegraph wires are all down, and it is thought the storm reports through the section not heard from may contain a tale of disaster. Louisville, March 29.—Temporary roofs are being put on wherever possible, and hundreds of hogsheads of exposed tobacco are being carted to warehouses. In spite of all efforts, however, several thousand hogsheads remain unprotected on the second, third and fourth floors. There will be considerable danger in reaching these, as they seem ready to topple into the

The streets in the districts the worst damaged are still picketed, but elsewhere wagons and all but mere sightseers are allowed to pass. WASHINGTON, March 28 .- The Ser ate Committee on Census to-day concluded its hearing of the Chinese Census bill, a delegation from the Pacific coast appearing in support of the measure. Morrow of California, who is the author of the bill, stated that legislation was necessary to keep out Chinese merchants as well as laborers. There are enough of them, he said and the fact is that a genuine Chinese merchant has not come to San Francisco in the past ten years. So long as merchants are allowed to come and go at will, with or without certificates, the undesirable classes can not be controlled.

EDITION

THE Chinese are protesting by their attorneys against the passage of the Morrow bill requiring them to take certificates from the census enumerators which shall be the sole evidence of their right to remain in the country. One of the arguments of their counsel is that the bill will not satisfy those interthe bill will not satisfy those interested in anti-Chinese legislation. In direct proof of this the attention of the Senate has been called to the Bingham ordinance for the removal of San Francisco's Chinatown.

accomplishes that result will suit us; anything that falls short of it will have to be amended. We are not especially enamored of any particular bill. We are not concerned with means, but with ends. If the guileless strangers for whom Attorney Foster pleads had obeyed kip shoes full stock to order for $5 oo. Try a the original Restriction Act of 1882 we should have been entirely satisfied with that, and should never have asked a single amendment. All we have done since has been to try to stop up the holes in the law as fast as the Chinese could gnaw them.

"Congress may be becoming tired of anti-Chinese legislation. If so all it has to do is to leave such matters to the Pacific Coast delegation. It has already indersed the principle, and all we ask is such treatment of details as experience shows to be necessary to carry out the established policy of the Government. Let the members from this Coast do all the drudgery of drawing up the necessary bills and their passage need not occupy the time of Congress for two minutes."

THE demand which is made for the prohibition of pool-rooms comes alike from those who frequent the race course and those who do not; from lovers of athletic exercises on which people bet as well as from those who take little or no interest in baseball or other contests. It is generally recognized that pool-rooms, as they have of late years been conducted, are damaging not only to legitimate sport, but to the morals of SHEEP DIP! SHEEP DIP! SHEEP DIP communities, and that they are a snare for the young. The modified bill to repress the evil now pending in the Senate prohibits pool-rooms and pool-selling on horse-racing, cock-fighting, baseball games, or other contests, under penalty of imprisonment and fine, of which latter half the amount will go to the informer. Pool-selling on the grounds of the race course or trials of speed on Agricultural Fair grounds are excepted, being a compromise to secure the abatement of the chief evil of pool-rooms, where there is a never-ending round of gambling.

THAT is a ringing letter of Madam Tshebriokva to the Czar. She tells him what his Ministers dare not hint to him: that the way to peace and progress and safety lies through ceasing the cruelties that now are the rule through educating the people and through restoring to them a constitutional H. E. DAVIS & CO., PROPRIETORS. government. The Salt Lake Tribune thinks the receipt of the letter must have been a stunner to a man who has long nursed the idea that he has a right divine to rule the state, and a grace divine to be the accepted head of the church. The letter may cost the woman much suffering, but the truths of the letter will go marching on; they will become slogans for the people; they will keep ringing and ringing until their echoes will fill all the air of the empire, and though the cowering Czar may barricade his windows, he will not keep the sound of them out. This book contains 480 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy pa-per and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

It is different from all other works ever published. First—It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when a person gets sick.

All similar books tell what to do if you know what the disease is. This book tells you HOW TO DETECT THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it.

No other Book Published does this,

Second-When a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is: "Send for a competent phy-sician at once." But in all ordinary cases, such as can be easily cured, it gives full directions for treatment.

Third-It is not confined to the practice used by any one class of physicians; but it gives, separately, and for each disease, the methods used by each of the different schools of medicine, and in ALL CASES the PRE-SCRIPTIONS ARE MADE by the MOST EMINENT MEN id their respective modes of practice. This makes the work specially suited to the needs of every family, no matter what medical school they prefer. No other Book Published Does this.

TESTIMONIALS:

Having examined the advance shee's of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of diseases and reliable in its theraputical department.

H. F. COOK, M. D.,

Professor of Theory and Practice,

Hahnemann Medical College.

I have examined the advance sheets of "Our Family Physician." It gives me pleasure, o recommend the work as correct in its mode of treatment of disease, and it de-serves wide circulation. J. F. COOK, M. D., Professor in Burnett's Medical Col-lege, Chicago.

After examining the publication agur Family Physician" I can fully endorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen. R. A. GUNN, M.D. Professor of the Burnett Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and in my opinion, worthy of the confidence of the public. H. S. HANN, M.D.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid woederfully in diagnosing diseases, and the proper remedies are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eclectic, Hydropathic and Herbal treatments.

We have a number of the books on hand, and we invite inspection.

on hand, and we invite inspection. There are three chapters in the "Family Physician" which are worthy of special mention, namely, those on "Diseases of Women," "heases of Infants" and "Care of the sick."

The first of these is a model of its kind. It is chaste in Januage, contains no disgusting pictures for children to happen on and be overcurious about, and taken altogether is the most practical, sen ible and straight-forward treatise upon this delicate subject that has ever been printed.

This chapter alone is worth many times the cost of the book to every mother, even if it had to be purchased at its regular price.

The other chapters referred to are equally well written and valuable, See "Our Plan" on 4th page.

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the Werkly Gazette mean to revise this oi! rule; they intend to do as well, at le. st, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our apprecation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express objection offering it is to increase our list of subscriber who may renew his subscriber, we will ask every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, thus receiving the valuable premium, to constitute himself a missionary, and aid us in securing at least ONE new subscriber. You cannot be, permit us to say, unless you are accompanied with the traveler's and tourist's vade mecum, Hos-titter's Stomach Bitters, most genial of appetizers, acclimatizers and promoters of digestion. Against sea sickness, malaria, cramps and colies be gotten et badly cooked or unholesome food and blackish water, nervousness increased by travel, chronic biliousness, and constipation the Bitters is a sovereign preventive. It imparts a relish for food not altogether to your taste, and prevents it from disagreeing with you. Never was there such a capital thing for the unfortunate dyspeptic who stands in dread of the best cooked meal. Stomachic trouble caused by ill prepared viands aboard ship, on steamboats, and rations hastily bolted at railroad restaurants, is soon remedied by the Bitters, which a quietus also to rheumatism, kidney troubles and insomnia.

CATARRH.

New Home Treatment.

Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and eustachian tubes Microscopic research, however, has proved this to be a fact, and the result of this discovery is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby catarrh, catarrhal deafness and hay fever are permanently cured in from one to three simple applications made at home by the patient once in two

ROUND VALLEY DAM

The Report That It Had Gone Out

a Mistake.
The following from the Lassen Adpocate proves that the report received from Liegan a few days ago of the destruction of the Round Valley dam wag a migtake :

Last Sunday a report was circulated around town that the Round Valley dam, belonging to the Lassen Land and Live Stock Co., had gone out an-der the heavy pressure of 25 feet of water, and those interested in such enwater, and those interested in such en-terprises were particularly concerned at the news, as the above dam was supposed to be the best in this vicinity. On Monday some men passed through Willow Creek valley, and on reaching town said the report must have been false, as they had heard nothing of it on the way, and no evidence of a large body of water rushing into Willow creek could be seen.

On Tuesday afternoon the Advocate received the following dispatch from Mr. Fox, the Superintendent of the company's ranches, which set all con-

ARTESIAN WATER.

Wells in Sierra Valley Are

Flowing Copiousty.

E. J. Woods of Sierra Valley informs the GAZETTE that the artesian wells in that valley that failed last summer are beginning to flow again. The well of H. J. Lander, near Beckwith, which had ceased to flow and with, which had ceased to flow and the water did not come within twelve feet of the surface, has commenced a more copious flow than ever before. Its flow was only 15 gallons per min-ute formerly and it now flows at least 30 gallons per minute.

The farmers are going to bore quite a number of wells the coming season.

Important to Breeders.

Attention is called to the advertisement of "Mirfield King," a beautiful dappled mahogany bay Englishshire stallion, the property of Wm. Wright of Reno. The Denver Rocky Mountain News says: Sweatnam, the eccentric comedian of the Cleveland Minstrels, did a funny thing coming from Aspen to Leadville last week. The jump was long and the prospects for a dinner very slim. While approaching Glenwood Springs, Sweatnam thought,

"I'll get off and get some luncheon here. Leadville is a long way off." Amongst the purchases was a goose-forry pie. Mrs. Sweatnam didn't like the aforesaid pie, and Mrs. Cleveland also refused it. The boys were then offered a piece, but breakfast had hardly settled and no one wauted any. Sweatnam scratched his head and said: "All right. I paid 40 cents for that pie and I'll sell it now for 25 cents." No one jumped at the bargain and the poor pie was placed on a piece of paper and laid on the floor between two seats that were turned over. A couple of hours went by, and in the couple of hours went by, and in the meantime Mrs. Sweatnam was kept busy keeping Belle and Beauty (Mr. Clevelsnd's dogs) away from it. Finally some one said: "How much will you take for your pie now Sweatnam?" That was enough for the comedian. He said "I'll raffle it at five cents a chance." The baye all impract for He said "I'll raffle it at five cents a chance." The boys all jumped for their small change, and when Sweatnam counted his profits he had just $1 30. Henesey, the leader of the band, won the pie, and after helping himself to a fourth of it sold the remaining three fourths for ten cents a

POVERTY AND RICHES.

Rev. M. J. Savage on the Prope Use of Money.

Humanity Is Better Served by Private Ownership of Wealth Than It Would Be by a Public Treasury—Genuine Philanthropy.

At the Church of the Unity, Boston,

Mass., Rev. M. J. Savage preached recently upon the subject of "Wealth and Poverty." He began, says the Herald, by examining various popular definitions of wealth, pointed out their deficiencies, and then proceeded to say that wealth is simply the accumulation of objects of human desire, for the measure of value was nothing else than the fact that the thing possessed and that was looked upon as having value, was something which a great many people desired. And if they analyzed that desire they would find it only a modification of the fundamental fact of hunger, and this was true from the lowest physical hunger to the highest spiritual aspiration. Is wealth, then, asked Mr. Savage, a desirable thing? Would it be better if there were no rich and no poor? It seems to me most certainly not. For wealth—some accumulated value beyond that which is needed for the immediate necessities of the community—is the very condition of higher growth. Picture to yourselves a world in which every man, woman and child has shelter, food, clothing-in which there is no care for the morrowthe world? So far, yes. But if there was only enough in the world to give shelter, food and clothing, we might be well-fed animals, without care, for a thousand centuries, but we could be nothing else. If there are to be higher hungers, and if men are to grow to be something more than animals, then there must be, in the hands of some one and somewhere, food for supplying these higher hungers. If men are to think, to study, to travel, to exchange ideas, have social intercourse with each other, and be free from the grinding sities, they must have the means for doing all these things. The question now comes, when wealth has been accumulated, who shall own and control it? Before we can answer this question we must decide the question, who has produced it. A man who stands alone can never be rich, and this even if we live in a civilized community. The essential feature of riches is the matter of exchange, the public use of these accumulations. Who owns wealth, then? The rich man and humanity, not the rich man alone. Mr. Savage then took up the question of poverty. Defining the only poverty really injurious to man as that which took away from him the means of growth -prevented him from becoming what e is capable of becoming—the preacher onsidered the various ways in which poverty originated. He thought that nad too much legislative action, too little individual initiative. and too little individual initiative. Vice brought poverty, and there were thousands of people in the world who, from one reason or another, were incapable of emerging from poverty, and were as much entitled to our sympathy as were the crippled and lame. I believe said Mr. Savage, that it is possible to eliminate pauperism from the world. If the community has a right to support those who, for one reason or another, are incapable of taking care of themselves, then it has undoubtedly a right to see to it that its resources are not lessened by the unthrift, the theft, the dishonesty of those who could sup-port themselves if they would. It ought to exercise that right—to take a tender and loving care of those who can not take care of themselves, and then to compel those who can to do one or two things—to earn their living or to starve.

things—to earn their living or to starve.

And now, said Mr. Savage, in closing, what shall the rich man do with his money? Or what shall he do with that surplus which he does not need? I would have no laws touching the matter. I would have men perfectly free to leave their property to wife, daughter or son, so toil needed for the merest animal necesthough I believe that, nine tir out of ten, sons are injured more than they are helped by having too much money left to them. I would educate the thought and conscience of the world up to the point of a grand use of these accumulated thousands. If I had thousands of millions of dollars I would devote it to good uses while I lived, rather than leave it to be wrangled over in the courts after my death. It seems to me that I should take a delight in helping the world. I can see men and women who are capable of doing work of public importance, yet who are hampered and tied down to the necessity of simply filling their stomachs. I would be glad to relieve these from the necessity of earning their daily bread. Such a use of riches, which I only throw out as a suggestion, seems a much grander way of dealing with riches than that of holding them until the white fingers of death come to take them away. Why not take joy in doing the work well while you can see it done and can ob-serve the results? And if the poor could only see the rich recognizing these principles and animated by these motives, enmity would disappear, the world would flow together in love, and the kingdom of God would be very nigh.

A TRIFLE PESSIMISTIC.

Drop a Tear for the Wife While You Laugh at the Husband. Early in the century there lived in Edinburgh a well-known grumbler named Sandy Black, whose oft-recurring fits of spleen or indigestion produced some amusing scenes of senseless irritability which were highly relished by all except the fellow's good, patient little wife. One morning, says the New York Ledger, Sandy rose bent on a quarrel. The haddies and the eggs were excel-lent, done to a turn, and had been ordered by himself the previous evening; for compliment. "What will you have for dinner, Sandy?" asked Mrs. Black. "A chicken, madam," said the hus-

but breakfast passed without the looked band, "Roasted or boiled?" "Confound it! madam, if you had been a good and considerate wife you would have known before this what I like!" Sandy growled out as, slamming the door, he left the house.

It was in the spring, and a friend who was present heard his little wife say: "Sandy's bent on a disturbance to-day. I shall not please him, do what I will." The dinner-time came, and Sandy and his friend sat down to dinner. The fish was eaten in silence, and on raising the cover of the dish before him in a towering passion the former called out: "Boiled chicken! That's it, madam 'A chicken boiled is a chicken spoiled!" Immediately the cover was raised from another chicken roasted to a turn; 'Madam, I won't eat roast chicken! roared Sandy. "You know very well how it should have been cooked." At that instant a broiled chicken with mushrooms was placed on the table. "Without green peas!" roared the grum-

"Here they are, my dear," said Mrs. "How dare you spend my money in this manner?"

"They were a present," said his wife. Rising from his chair, Sandy clenched his fist and shouted: "How dare you receive presents without my leave?"

They Are Not as Enterprising as Their American Competitors. Nearly every book-dealer in London is a publisher. Consequently, if you seek a particular book it is hard to procure it at once unless you know the There are certain dealers-no tably Hatchard, in Piccadilly-who will get any book that is in print and can be got; but, writes Eugene Field in the Chicago News, they require time. Go into any shop and ask for an item and the chances are nine to one that the answer will be: "No, we haven't it, but we can get it for you,"

In every little nine-by-four shop you hear talk about "our factory." shall have to send down to our factory" for this article or that. This sort of thing makes even strong men very weary.

After inquiring in vain at half a dozen shops for a copy of James Whitcomb Riley's poems I made the long journey to Paternoster Row and applied for the book at Longman's, the publisher. was referred to a dealer in St. Paul's Churchyard. Thither I proceeded. They were all out of the book, but could get me one. "How soon can you go." they saked. "In a week or ten days," they "Where do you have to go for it?" I asked. "To the publisher's," they answered. "My friends," said I. "I have traveled four miles for that book and I am going to camp here till I get it. The publisher's is only one minute's walk from here—now fetch me that

Very few of the second-hand book-sho keepers know what they have in stock. You ask them for a certain book and they shake their heads, when the chances are that several copies of the book you want are conspicuously disd upon their shelves. Their socalled catalogues are not worth much, because they include, in most cases, only the high-priced books. The real curiosities are to be found not in the catalogues, but upon the top and bottom shelves of the dusty stalls.

The Latest Petticoat. The latest Petiticoat.

The latest petiticoat is straight from Paris and is untrimmed. It is simply a well-shaped skirt that look; as if it were made of leopard skin, but it is in reality a brocaded silk representing the skin of the wild beast. It is pleasantly warm to wear and has a barbaric look delightful to the smart girl who likes o imagine that she can have a sweetheart brave enough to go out and kill wild animals, the skins of which she which animals, the skins of which she may use to keep her pretty self warm. Women to-day are just as fond of thinking that men are brave and capable of manly sports as they used to be sure of it before the dude, the monoclassical statements and capable of the sure of th bsinthe cocktail were in vogue.

AN ARIZONA WONDER.

One of the Greatest Curiosities in the Natural Bridge, on Pine Creek, in the northern part of Gila County, is one of the greatest natural curiosities in the United States, equaling if not surpassing the Natural Bridge of Virginia. It spans the creek at a height of about 200 feet, and the walls of the canyon rise above it on either side 700 or 800 feet; and on one side form a perpendicular precipice. The bridge is of great arch, which is some 250 feet across, is worn by the water as smooth as though chiseled by the skillful hand of a stone-mason. The arch on top is nearly, if not quite, 400 feet in width, 1,000 feet in length across the canyon, and at the thinnest part only six feet through. About the center of the arch is a hole large enough to admit the body of a man, and though which one can look down into the crystal pool of water 200 feet below. The dike which forms the bridge extends in a sweeping curve up the right side of the stream, and, together with the bridge proper, affords a surface area of about 100 acres of fertile land, which David Gowan has converted-into a fine farm. A spring issues from the right side of the canyon at a height to admit of the water being easily conducted to any portion of the farm, and the volume is great enough to fill a ditch four feet wide and two feet deep, and to irrigate much more land than is available for civilization. The climate at the bridge is exceedingly equable, being warmer in summer and much milder in winter than that of the surrounding country, and to this fact is ascribed the wonderful variety of vegetable growth, numbering some 250 species of trees, shrubs, vines and plants. The vicinity abounds in numerous fossils and shells, and wherever moisture percolates through the calcareous rock beautiful stalactites are fermed. Underneath the bridge are numerous caves, some of which have never been explored and which are lined with those opaque cones resembling huge icicles.—Boston Transcript.

UGLY BEDOUIN BEGGARS.

The Wretched Lot of the Wandering Children of the Desert. We saw some Moorish houses in Bis kra which probably belonged to the richer and more influential Arab families, and were much more comfortablelooking, though all were made of the same mud and bricks. A group of spahis rode past us on their superb Arab steeds of mottled gray, black or white, with all the colored trappings and fringes, deep red leather harnes studded with brass and gilt.

We crossed a narrow stream which irrigates the oasis, and approached the tents of the Bedouins, who, on arriving from the desert the day before, had pitched their encampment within a stone's throw of the hotel. What wretched-looking habitations they were, and what miserable beings we say within! They live in such dirt and squalor that the neglected donkey, which was tied outside the tent and had s starved and beaten look, being covered with dirt and bruises, seemed better of than his owners.

At the first to it where we presented ourselves, instead of coming out and begging for money as we expected, a wild-looking man appeared brandishing a stout stick over his head in a threatening manner and frowning upon us in a most ugly way. We quickly left him alone with his pleasant reflections, and tried the next tent where a poor girl sat on the ground plaiting straw baskets.

She could scarcely see her work be fore her, as she was suffering from ophthalmia, that dread disease so ter-ribly prevalent among these wretched people. A cross-looking woman came out of the tent, and in a very grudging manner tried to keep a flerce dog from flying at our throats, writes a corre pondent. We were fain to be satisfied with throwing some coppers to her from a respectable distance, and concluded it was wiser to give up all attempts to cultivate a closer acquaintance with these wandering children of the desert. -N. Y. Morning Journal,

The Girl of the Family.

There is nothing so pitiful as a girl's renerosity. Though her pocket-book eldom contains more than one dollar and her own wants are many and urgent, she always manages to scrape enough together to buy presents some one else. It is the girl of the family who remembers the birthdays that come so often. She is worrying now that her hoard of pennies is so small and the number to buy presents for is so large. If a present of money was given her for herself she would not buy things for herself with it. She would remember the long list of people that she feels that she really must give to and would deny herself. There is no one so poor as the girl of the family and no one so generous.

Occupation for Little Fingers.

A very amusing occupation for little fingers and sometimes for larger ones is making a mosaic table. Buy one of the cheap little pine tables intended for enameling and cover the top, a portion at a time, with a layer of plaster of paris, on which, while fresh, small pieces of china are imbedded like a mosaic. All your own pretty broken china and all you can beg from your friends may be utilized in this way, the secret of success being in the careful fitting of the pieces. Many very pretty summer house or veranda tables are thus made, and the occupation usually proves very fascinating to children on rainy morn ings.-N. Y. Sun.

Cobden on Luck and Labor. Cobden wrote proverbs about luck and labor. It would be well for boys to memorize them. Luck is waiting for memorize them. Luck is waiting for something to turn up. Labor, with keen eyes and strong will, will turn up something. Luck lies in bed and wishes the postman would bring him news of a legacy; labor turns out at six o'clock, and with busy pen or ringing hammer, lays the foundation of a competence. Luck whines; labor whistles. Luck relies on chances; labor on char-Luck relies on chances; labor on character. Luck strides down to indigence; labor strides upward to independence.—N. Y. Ledger.
